

James Bradley is a Principal and Owner at GGLO where he is an architectural leader in both mixed-use multifamily and hospitality projects. His career spans more than 35 years and is focused on connecting beauty and innovation in all of his work. He is a firm believer that reducing our carbon footprint is a design imperative and connecting the goals of his clients with the project's context creates opportunities for unique experiences.