

Mollie Fadule is an industry-recognized senior leader in commercial real estate, known for her expertise in real estate private equity and technology. With experience managing portfolios representing over $10 billion, she currently serves as the Chief Financial and Investment Officer at JPI, a premier developer, builder, and investment manager that has developed over 125,000 units across the United States. Mollie plays a crucial role at JPI, overseeing investments, capital markets, finance, accounting, treasury, legal, risk, and technology, contributing to the company's success and its recognition as one of the fastest-growing developers in the U.S.

Mollie is a Past President of CREW Seattle, a past CREW Network Board director and a CREW Foundation visionary. She holds board positions at Landsea Homes (NASDAQ: LSEA), Urban Housing Ventures, and Pallet Shelter, and advises multiple companies in real estate and construction technology. Additionally, she serves on the advisory board for the Runstad Department of Real Estate at the University of Washington. Her contributions to the industry have earned her several prestigious awards, including Seattle PBSBJ's 40 Under 40, The Dallas 500, Globe St/Real Estate Forumn CRE Woman of Influence, connectcre Women In Real Estate and NAIOP's National Developing Leader Award.